Greetings 1961

Each year the iris season seems to come around quicker, for as I write this in March, the green shoots of our new crop of iris are well above the ground. There is always the keen anticipation of seeing new varieties bloom, and the hope for a good season.

May we suggest that you add a few of the newer iris to your garden each year—they take no more room or care than the older varieties. Perhaps you will find that the iris you wanted last year have now come within the price range of your garden budget. The iris listed in this catalog give you a fine selection of the best iris on the market. Plant them with pride and keep a garden chart—your neighbors will want to know the names.

Get your order in early to avoid sell-outs of some varieties. Plan to plant in July or August—these are the best months. Plantings that are made too late are susceptible to winter kill.

Culture

It is a mistake to assume that because iris are extremely hardy that they will not respond to a careful cultural plan. Above all, iris must have full sun and good drainage—given such conditions many of your iris troubles will be averted. Keep all dead leaves and litter removed—these breed disease. Iris will thrive in any ordinary garden soil. A good plan for the fertilizing of iris is to apply gypsum or lime in the spring, superphosphate after blooming, and a feeding of bone-meal in the fall. Larger blooms and more vigorous plants will be your reward.
